"Get It Done In Year One!"

Parents will do anything to make their children smile, but did you know...

*Tooth decay (or sugar bugs or cavities) can begin on teeth as soon as they erupt (break through) the gums. That can be as early as 4-5 months old!

*Pediatric dentists have special ways of looking into a baby's mouth even before they turn one...they don't have to "sit" in the dental chair to see the dentist!

*If you have a baby in your house, help your parents remember that babies need dental care, too! Even babies need to have their mouths and gums cleaned regularly with a soft infant toothbrush or cloth and water. Once a baby has teeth, remind mom and dad to brush them at least twice daily (just like you!) with an age-appropriate sized toothbrush and a "smear" of fluoridated toothpaste.

*Kids older than six months need fluoride supplements if their drinking water does not contain enough fluoride. (Fluoride supplementation in infants has been shown to reduce tooth decay by as much as 50 percent.)

- Babies should start to drink from a cup as they approach their first birthday and say goodbye to the bottle by the age of 14 months.
- Babies should visit the pediatric dentist before their first birthday and twice a year after that.
